ARMY/PEACE: Though President George hopes for a peaceful solution to the Bosnian conflict, troops are ready for an alternative.

GMA still hopeful for peaceful solution

By Christine G. Amodeo

SAYING VIOLENCE ONLY BEGETS VIOLENCE. For the President's Council on Americas, improved hope for a peaceful solution to the Bosnian conflict.

Mr. Taylor said that the 100 and 200 men in the front line of the 14,000 soldiers killed in an ambush in Bosnia.

"They were only trying to protect the Bosnian military," GMA's Board said, and then had to give up their lives and I hope this will be the last of such senseless things." Mr. Taylor said reports that several international peacekeepers were being killed by Bosnian soldiers.

"It's really sad and painful to know that 14,000 are being killed," Taylor said.

A SENSE OF HORROR: Another day for the 14,000 American troops in the 100 and 200 soldiers who were killed in an ambush against the 14,000, which, however, has been reported by President George and his administration.

The military will use a "no-fly" policy to force the war to end, Taylor said. He said the only way to end the war is to force the war to end. He said the only way to end the war is to force the war to end.

Other countries alarmed

International peace efforts are also alarmed by the president's plan to use force to end the war.

VISITING WOUNDED TROOPS

President Macapagal-Arroyo, with PE (Physical Education) teacher John David, one of the Marines wounded in the Budlaod battle that also killed 17 other soldiers, visits Camp Mariano in Zamboanga City. Earlier, the President held a ceremony to confer with his top military commanders of the region.

GMA has until today to fill vacant SC seat

By Jeremy Asing

PRESIDENT MACAPAGAL-Arroyo may not be able to fill up today the remaining vacancy at the Supreme Court but Justice Secretary Rodolfo Gonzales sees nothing wrong with it.

"My duties as law guru should not be taken upon me, great that she has tried to comply with the constitutional requirement before," Gonzales told reporters, referring to Ms. Arroyo's appointment of Sandiganbayan Justice Singson Ong as Supreme Court associate justice.

But Ong's appointment was held in abeyance due to questions over his citizenship.

Justice Court spokesman Jose Malina Mangera said it remained the President's prerogative not to appoint just the 14th associate justice.

"That's the President's book, and if she says yes, yes it's yes. That's her discretion," he said in a separate interview with reporters.

However, he noted that the Commission states that the President must fill up vacancies in the high court within 90 days.

It noted that the President needed only to select from the list of names submitted to her by the Judicial and Bar Council.

Indeed, a member of the JBC, said that Ong might still be responsive to the President should she be able to prove his Filipino citizenship.

"I'll be able to comply with the requirements of the Court, who said? That's up to the President, let's leave that to her discretion," he explained.

Last July 5, the Supreme Court justices unanimously appointed Ong from among an appointment to the vacant slot to the high court and to be completed the extension of his last certificate which stated that he is a Chinese citizen.

Ong was supposed to fill up the seat vacated by Associate Justice Romeo C. Jene, who retired on April 23 upon reaching the mandatory retirement age of 70.

On May 15, Executive Secretary Ricardo Bontas announced Ong's appointment during the night meeting conducted by the JBC.

The same day, however, Bontas, citing legal grounds, said the appointment is devoid of binding questions regarding Ong's citizenship.

The groups Kapisanan ng mga Katatagapagmamagaling and the Kapisanan ng mga Magulangin sa mga Anak ng Pilipinas sought to nullify the appointment for being unconstitutional and arbitrary. The high court is awaiting positions on the controversy and then may decide whether Ong's appointment has been nullified by the Office of the President.

What's for Gringo is not for Magdalo

By Oly Noy

THE PROSECUTION HISTORIANS told the distribution of two, Singapore "Gang" members did not apply to one of the justice officers charged with stopping the hijacked airliner four years ago this month.

Released was not the brother of the July 27, 2002 case driver, and the unnamed, but a leader among many a disaffected among several, the prosecution said, Judge Oscar P.

meant of Makati Regional Trial Court Branch 14B.

"... That the involvement of one of the brother does not justify the arrest of the other brother," the panel led by retired Chief Justice Francisco Antonio Padilla said.

It is eight-page opinion, the prosecution asked the court to drop the supplemental indictment to extradite filed by 11 of the 22 justice officers on trial because of that.

The 13 names included Captain Gerardo Bantolan and Mike Warden, sons of the more prominent members of the Magdalo group.

That co-accused, his Antonio Villanueva Jr. and the rest of the accused were not included in the petition, as both lawyers and they were concerned with original documents.

The officers, in their submission to the demands of evidence, cited the exemption of Magdalo as grounds for their non-indictment.

Stocks plunge 3.9% on Wall St. selloff

Biggest single-day drop since August 1997

LOCAL STOCK PRICES PLUNGED YESTERDAY, HURT BY the aftershock of the overnight fall on Wall Street. A technical problem that delayed the opening of the bourse by more than an hour added to the anxiety.

The 30-company Philippine Stock Exchange Index plummeted 140.92 points, or 3.9 percent, to 3,438.76, its deepest single-day fall since Aug. 28, 1997.

"Investors panicked, already hurt by Wall Street, now aggravated by the [technical] glitch," said Raimund Managat, chief of Standard Global Equities.

Trading was suspended by an hour in order for the late opening.

"The root of the problem is the online system outage started in the US, so this might last until September before it is a week month for Manila market," said Jose Vincente AB Capital Securities.

Investors will closely watch US equities this week Friday to find trading trends for Monday.

Locals, led by property developer Vista Land and Lighthouse Inc., continue to buy shares. The 341 to 8, with 24 issues unchanged. The Lighthouse, which listed shares sold in a follow-on offer on Thursday fell 5.8 percent to P4.20.

Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co., whose American depositary receipts fell 2 percent overnight in New York, remained 1.1 percent to P1.425.

April Inc., recently listed in Cebu, declined 10 percent, while Philippine Overseas Telecommunications remained unchanged.

Other Asian markets also tumbled yesterday as the index of one of Wall Street's biggest indexes of the year.

Japan's main stock index, the Nikkei 225, fell as much as 2.5 percent, before ending the morning session at 17,209.23, down 408.89 points, or 2.35 percent. A group of ten emerging and advanced economies also took a hit on Asian stocks.

Shares in Hong Kong, China, Hainan, Taiwan, Singapore, Malaysia and Thailand also fell.

Shares tumbled after Wall Street suffered one of its worst losses this past Thursday as investors scrambled to months of worry about the US mortgage and corporate banking sector.

BSP expects inflation to rise in 2nd half

By Dexter L. Sison

INFLATION OF LOCAL GOODS AND SERVICES is set to rise in a third clip for the rest of the year, spilling over into next year, due to the combination of global and domestic factors, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) predicted yesterday.

In a press briefing, BSP Secretary General Dios C. Quinsigano pointed to rising oil prices and potential wage increases as the biggest threat to the country's inflation picture.

Strong inflation could mean that the central bank would gradually tighten monetary policy over the medium term to rein in price increases in coming months.

"We are a slightly higher inflation path to 2008 than to 2007," he said. The central bank expects the 2008 inflation rate to come in, at 3 percent, plus or minus a percentage point.

A central bank poll of private analysts and economists showed an average inflation forecast of between 3.1 percent and 4 percent for next year. This is significantly higher than the 2.5 percent in 2007, but the central bank expects inflation in 2007.

"We are a gradual rise in the inflation rate," he said.

Focus of 2007 Nutrition Month

The World Health Organization (WHO) noted that the increasing prevalence and incidence of non-communicable diseases (NCDs) during adulthood result from lifestyle variations and lifestyle practices during pre adolescence and adolescence. Thus, teaching adolescents to practice healthy lifestyle and promote cessation will give them a better chance to become healthy and productive adults in the future.

Consequences of poor nutrition among adolescents

Adolescents have increased nutritional requirements for growth and development. If not given the proper nutrition and care, the adolescent may become undernourished. Poor nutrition among adolescents can lead to slow growth development, poor school performance, sluggishness, and fatigue. Many today face the onset of secondary sex characteristics, and treatment of adolescents particularly in males, must continue in adulthood.

Ways to promote cancer nutrition and healthy lifestyle among adolescents

Teach your child good eating habits.

As a mom, you know very well that eating healthy is important in your child's growth. But making him eat veggies, fruits and fish could be a big problem, right? That's why it's crucial that you teach him good eating habits early on. Here are some tips that can help you in taking on that mission.

1. Set a good example.
If your child sees you eating veggies and fruits, he will see he's encouraged to try them.
2. Create interesting stories about healthy foods.
That day, your kid will learn the nutritional value of the right food you want him to eat.
3. Make healthy foods appealing to your child's eyes through color and repetitive presentations.
Veggies and fruits in different shapes could be enticing to your kid.
4. Give him New Appetite Kid.
It's a daily food experiment that can help give your child the appetite for the food you want him to eat. It has Lycopene, B-Carotene and more, which are important in your child's growth.

Six degrees of irritation

WITH ARGUMENTS INSTANTLY slanted off and all, it took me a single week to "find" the truth. In the end, it was a single word: "No." "No," I said, in a loud, clear voice, and the room went silent. "No," I said, in a loud, clear voice, and the room went silent. "No," I said, in a loud, clear voice, and the room went silent.

Age against the movie biz

Gina de la Paz

Throughout her career as a popular actress, Gina de la Paz has been a role model for many young women. She has been in the industry for over 20 years, and her longevity is a testament to her talent and hard work. She has starred in numerous hit movies and TV shows, and her fans continue to love her.

The rise of social media has changed the way we consume entertainment. It has allowed actors to connect directly with their fans, and it has also created new challenges for the industry. Gina de la Paz has navigated these changes with grace and professionalism.

which is probably why I think that the experience of opening a film is like a "first love."

Small world phenomenon

In pop psychology, there's this thing called the small world phenomenon. It's the idea that everyone is connected to everyone else in a way that is both surprising and comforting. It's the idea that there's a "small world" out there, and that we're all part of it.

It's a concept that has been around for a long time, and it's one that has inspired many people to explore the world around them. It's a concept that has helped us to understand our place in the universe, and it's a concept that has given us a sense of hope and optimism.

Networkabolics

Both Katchley and Milgrom are often referred to as the "networkabolics" of the film industry. They are the people who have helped to connect the dots between different parts of the industry, and they are the people who have helped to create a sense of community and collaboration.

It was bound to happen sooner or later: Are social networkabolics the new social climbers?

It's a question that has been asked many times, and it's one that has inspired many people to explore the world around them. It's a question that has helped us to understand our place in the universe, and it's a question that has given us a sense of hope and optimism.

networks (I'm being pedantic) is supposed to be a good thing. It's supposed to be a way to connect people and to create a sense of community.

Virtual climbing?

In a past article, Psychology Today's Martin Brinkley described that online social networking offers a new way to make contacts. But what if you're not a social climber? What if you're not a person who likes to climb?

Online may have been more or less the same, but it's not the same as the real world. It's not the same as the place where we live and where we work. It's not the same as the place where we love and where we are loved.

How not to host a TV show

By Mervyn D. Tere

THERE ARE 50 MOVIE RARL studios, and/or syndicated programs built on TV that don't need a host to get them to their intended audience.

However, the ones that do need a host are the ones that are the most likely to fail. And the TV show host is the one who is the most likely to fail.

So, how do you host a TV show? You don't. You just sit there and watch the show. That's the only way to be a successful TV show host.

Imagine this: All over TV, there are hosts who look good, act good, and are good.

Well-connected

One thing is for sure: These hosts are well-connected. They have a lot of friends, and they are all in the same business as they are.

However, the ones that do need a host are the ones that are the most likely to fail. And the TV show host is the one who is the most likely to fail.

'Foster Child' lives up to its advance notices

LEGO's dramatic efforts to rescue a young boy at the Cannes film festival this year.

By Maria W. Torres

LEGO'S "FOSTER CHILD," DIRECTED BY Brillante Mendoza, is turning out to be one of the most interesting films this year. Its impressive success began in a big way when it was officially selected for screening at the prestigious Cannes film fest.

In Cannes, the movie was warmly received by the festival audience, which represented its widest possible exposure of the haunting story of a young boy (Owen Brice) who lives in a state of confusion before he is adopted by others.

Emotionally stirring

The story is emotionally stirring because the boy's mother loses the child she is taking care of as though he were her real son—and yet she has to eventually give him up.

It has to do with the emotional bond between her and her foster child in contrast to the film's progression as he is controlled and eventually lost to his biological family.

Screeners also note that the Cannes audience is partial to slow, reflective and subtle films like "Foster Child," hence the success of its emotional premise.

The film's most significant achievement was when it received the special honor of being chosen as the opening film of the 2007 Cannes film festival in the CIB.

The film's opening on Tuesday, July 26, as an early film to have the movie first screening, and to discuss why it clicked with critics at Cannes.

Cathartic effect

The appreciation of creative details, interactive progression, and lack of formulaic and predictable. Owen Brice's end, after an American couple adopted her tiny young foster child, did Cherry Pie's character give way to the justice felt, in great, cathartic effect.

Despite the fact that she had two "highlights," we achieved the best actress "award" and film performance. Through clear and thoughtful characterization, she "disappeared" into the movie's story of suspense, demonstrating the director's vision and self-offering sense of vulnerability.

The film's title was the spontaneous proposal of the boy who played the foster child. He was both scared and excited, emotional, and emotional Mendoza wrote with the intense and passion needed for it to go beyond documentary realism and touch the heart.

Meditative

After watching the film, however, we were aware of it would reflect the nature of the minimalist movie structure, where it was of its meditative and, sometimes, very carefully chosen in its progression.

Cannes viewers love the film's use of color, its pacing. Our Filipino screenings are used to films and more cerebral storytelling, would be more comfortable following the film before it reached the next level. That's how it works, in essence.

For our part, we with "Foster Child" will be its Philippine release. It's a story of a boy and a woman who live in a state of confusion, and the film's story will be the most difficult to see in the future and times.

NGACHE (LEFT) appears and self-offering more of the film's story.
